

www.itacsoftware.com - More than a product presentation
MES system provider iTAC sets standards online, too.

Dernbach, April 8, 2008 - The leading MES system provider iTAC Software AG presents its newly designed web site with information about products and the company and comments on current MES topics from practice.

As of April 2008, iTAC Software AG's web site convinces with a new appealing and contemporary layout. The changed appearance is part of a completely new concept for the iTAC web site.

Service philosophy has always been in the foreground at iTAC Software AG – the web site continues this concept. The site stands out with a simple and logical structure; it contains extensive information about products, topics/solutions, services, partners, industries, the company, and about current topics and events.

"Of course you will find anything you'd ever want to know about our enterprise, our products, technology, and about the services of iTAC Software. Beyond that, it was important to us to offer added value to the visitors to our web site. That's why we pick up topics that are hotly debated on the market under the Topics & Solutions menu item, and give our perspective to the problems of the day", says Michael Fischer, Head of Marketing at iTAC Software AG.
